LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Reliable quarters reported Monday that Great Britain and France were making a fresh attempt to mediate the two-and-a-half-year-old Spanish civil war. British officials acknowledge the two governments were "trying to spot needless bloodshed in every possible way."
Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons that "any threat to the vital interests of France, from whatever quarter it came, must evoke immediate co-operation of this country."
His declaration followed the statement Sunday by Virginia Gayda, Italian Fascist newspaper spokesman, that Italian troops will stay in France until Generalissimo Franco's political as well as military victory was assured.

Catalonia Advanced
"PERIPYCNAN, France.—(AP)—Fleeing Spanish government armies began a mass flight into France Sunday night after their leaders had abandoned Catalonia to conquering insurgent armies. Government leaders were reported violently split over continuing the war. President Azana, former Premier Giral, Luis Companys, president of the Catalonian government, and many of Premier Negrin's ministers were said to have appealed to him to surrender at once to General Franco.

Negrin entered France at 3:45 a. m. today with four of his cabinet members in a fleet of eight automobiles. The cabinet members and their body guards had driven from Aguilan, just across the border from Le Perthus, where they had held a cabinet meeting earlier in the night. They were said to be seeking to return to central Spain to continue the war.

With the premier were Thomas Bilbao, minister without portfolio; Segundo Blanco Gonzales, minister of education; Ramon Gonzalez Pena, minister of justice; and Paulino Gomez Saliz, minister of home affairs. Matresses and suitcases were strapped on the roofs of their automobiles. The windshield of one of their cars was riddled with bullet holes.

Their bodyguards left in the hands of the French frontier guards a mound of pistols and submachine guns.
Broken government forces began crossing the frontier into France Sunday afternoon, after the French government decided to open the border to the escaping troops. Almost 10,000 had entered France before nightfall when French authorities decided to close the gates until dawn today when more will be admitted.

French army officers said late last night they were prepared to receive 150,000 government soldiers. They believed the remaining 50,000 members of the routed government forces would be captured or would surrender.

Italians to Stay in Spain
ROME, Italy.—(AP)—Virginia Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, suggested Sunday the possibility that Italian troops would remain in Spain even after Spanish insurgent forces occupied the entire country.

The Fascist Grand Council had served notice that Italian volunteers "will not abandon" the Spanish struggle "before it is ended, as it must end, with (General) Franco's victory."
Gayda, writing in La Voce d'Italia, indicated this victory would not be considered won until the insurgents had consolidated their political domination of Spain as well as military control. One of the points in the Anglo-Italian pact signed last April 16 was withdrawal of all Italian fighters and war materials from Spain at the end of the civil war, if not completed earlier.
Gayda said the Spanish government forces and their supporters, "although beaten at arms, are not disarming in the political field." He charged that "new pressure and diplomatic intervention" were being planned against the insurgents.

PROBE AT CITY HALL

Killing Said to Have Resulted in Quarrel With Constable

A coroner's inquest will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at Hope city hall in the killing of Otis Ward, 30, of Fulton, who was shot to death late Saturday night at a tent show on the main street of Fulton.

The hearing was originally scheduled for Monday, but was postponed until after funeral services.

Sheriff C. E. Baker, who investigated, said Constable Ed Wilson of Fulton told him he shot Ward to death after a scuffle. The bullet pierced Ward's heart, killing him instantly.

Wilson was quoted as saying that he had been called to the tent show to quell a disturbance, and while there became involved in an argument with Ward.

Sheriff Baker quoted Wilson as saying he had had "several arguments" with Ward and that he fired after Ward had stuck at him.

Funeral services were to be held at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at Holly Springs cemetery near Garland City.

Ward is survived by his widow, a small child, one sister, Mrs. Grace Cox of Fulton, and four brothers. Ward had been a resident of Fulton several years.

Rockefeller Estate
Becomes WPA Project

CLEVELAND.—(AP)—Inside the gates and high fences around the "country estate" of the late John D. Rockefeller, Sr., a WPA army works to make the grounds a public park.

Wheelbarrows move along the paths where Rockefeller liked to bicycle in the moonlight.
Shovels and manpower grade the rolling acres. In 1940, the million-dollar tract of 253 acres will be open to the public.

When Rockefeller bought the site for $1,000 an acre in 1873, it was rural property, located at least six miles east of Cleveland business and industry. Now it is a part of East Cleveland and Cleveland heights.

Last year, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who often returned to the estate after the family moved from Cleveland, gave the site to the two cities in which it lies for park purposes.

Mellaney of Union and Weisenberger of Hempstead laid on the desk for introduction later Monday a bill to require the State Highway Department to maintain state and federal highway continuation through cities and incorporated towns.

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Allegations that the outlawed Irish republican army had formed a plan to blast the British out of Ireland were made in the Bow street police court Monday as Scotland Yard guarded the British royal family, high officials, and public buildings against further bomb outrages.

At the trial of 12 men accused of conspiring to cause the explosions, the prosecuting attorney spoke of a mysterious "aluminum powder," of a new arrest of "considerable importance," and a plan designated as "X," described as "most comprehensive, covering every field of public activity."

The Hope High School basketball team will play four games this week. A fifth game with Fordyce, a conference foe, is pending.

The Bobcats open a two-game series with Waldo High School Monday night at 7:30 o'clock at the high school gymnasium. The second game will be played Tuesday night at Waldo.

The other two games are with the Texarkana (Ark.) High Razorbacks, the first one there Thursday night and the second one there Friday night.

The Bobcats are expected to encounter stiff opposition here against the Waldo team, one of the leaders of the district 10 cage teams.

Senate Wallops F. D.

The Associated Press last Wednesday, February 1, in reporting the senate judiciary committee's rejection of the Roberts' nomination, quoted Senator Carter Glass as saying he understood the president nominated Roberts as a rebuke to himself and Senator Harry Byrd because the two Virginia senators had opposed some administrative measures in the upper house.

Senator Glass indicated at the committee hearing last Wednesday that he and Byrd expected to have their patronage rights maintained when the Roberts nomination reached the floor of the senate—and it was maintained overwhelmingly by today's vote.

Arkansas Court Sustains
Will of Old Pension
Couple

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court Monday upheld the will of an aged couple, long beneficiaries of a federal Civil War pension, which gave their entire joint estate to the United States government.

The opinion reversed a decree of Polk county chancery court which ruled that the estate, valued at more than $7,500, principally in government bonds, should go to a niece, Mrs. Annie Moore, of Kansas City, Kan.

Under the terms of the joint will drawn in 1935, T. A. Beck and his wife Lizzie Beck left the property to the United States. They were receiving a pension of $100 a month at the time of her death, a week apart, in February 1937. He was 94 and she was 69.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The house appropriations committee recommended Monday $1,898,512,769 Monday to operate more than a score of independent government agencies for the year starting July 1—an increase of more than $298,000,000 over the current year.

Despite the increase, the committee lopped $1,589,670 from some of the budget bureau's estimates.

It withheld a $2,038,175 appropriation recommended for the Federal Communications Commission, pending action by congress on the president's request for reorganization of the commission, torn recently by internal dissension.

The net increase in the bill's total was accounted for by the inclusion of a new item of 100 million dollars for the Maritime Commission's construction fund, the grant authorizing the commission to contract for an additional 230 million dollars worth of construction.

By far the largest item in the bill were $561,093,000 for the Veterans Administration, and $350,000,000 for the Social Security Board.

W. F. Blackwood, giving an over-draft, dismissed on payment of cost.

He was charged with giving a $1 check to Webb's Newsstand drawn on the Bank of Mineral Springs.

Larlene Haskins pleaded guilty to taking $1 in merchandise from Morgan & Lindsey store and was fined $25 and sentenced to one day in jail.

Almost 20,000 bales of cotton was used in 1937 for the manufacture of fertilizer bags.

Dairy Meet Here
10 a. m. Thursday

Extension Service and Jersey Cattle Club Experts Will Speak

V. L. Gregg, extension dairy specialist, and D. T. Simmons, fieldman of the American Jersey Cattle Club, will meet with dairy farmers, extension agents, Smith-Hughes teachers, Farm Security Supervisors, and other leaders at the first District Dairy day meeting of 1939 at the city hall in Hope, Thursday, February 9, from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

The theme of the day's program will be to make greater use of dairy products at home and to provide supplemental farm income in the face of depressed prices for cash crops. No formal program is to be set up, according to Hempstead county extension agents, but leaders present are wanted to recite their thoughts as to their dairy problems and solutions.

The district dairy-day show which proved such a success to this district for 1938, it was the original plan to rotate the Dairy-Day shows between the different counties of the district each year. Dairy products, as well as dairy cows have a part at district Dairy-Day shows.

According to the 1935 census, Hempstead county had 11,011 cows and heifers on 3,692 farms. Hempstead county also had 1,285 farms without milk cows which tends to show some of the dairy work needing to be done. All interested in dairying are invited.

CHAPTER I

SUSIE'S heart was breaking, tears stung behind her eyes, a lump in her throat refused to be swallowed. No one looking at Susie, polishing the nickel-plated coffee urn, industriously wiping counters, filling little jugs with syrup, would have credited her with emotions of any sort. Somehow broken hearts and stinging tears were inconsistent with Susie's ponderous homeliness.

Working at her tasks she kept one eye on the door, daily regarding the handsome young men and smartly sophisticated girls who swarmed into the Waffle Shoppe in quest of Susie's golden brown delicacies. Wisecracking, patronizing smoothies, these college students, never treating Susie as a contemporary, never really seeing her.

That is, none of them treated her as a contemporary except Dick Tremaine, and in Dick Tremaine lay the cause of Susie's despairing heart and the lump in her throat. It was for Dick that she watched and waited, whipping egg whites to frothy stiffness, folding them gently into a creamy batter. It was because of Dick that her heart did a sickening flip-flop each time the door opened.

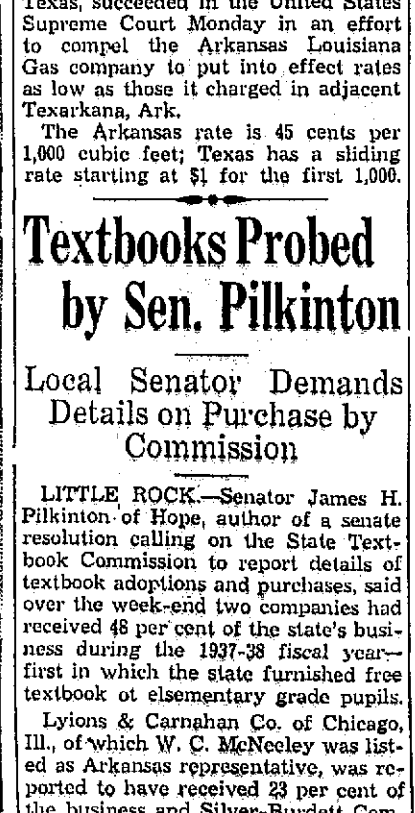

It was the last day of the spring term and excitement pulsed

No Longer Can We Take Freedom for Granted

This year's observance of Brotherhood Week, the annual programs sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, comes at a special fortunate time.

First, the week Feb. 19-26 falls within the period when the present Constitution was being ratified by the states 150 years ago. And almost at this time, Massachusetts was ratifying with the distinct reservation that the new Constitution must contain a "Bill of Rights." This was later embodied in the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, and is the national charter of religious liberty.

It is entirely clear that the Constitution could not have been adopted without the promise of such guarantees by later amendment. Hence the first 10 amendments are properly regarded as an integral part of the Constitution itself, through adopted a couple of years later after being submitted to the states by the First Congress.

So 150 years after this Constitution, Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish leaders throughout the country are urging "a new study of the Bill of Rights and its implications for a free America." That is timely and proper.

It was the first clause of the first of those precious 10 amendments that read, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

What that meant was that congress shall not establish a state church, with special privileges and relations to the government, as in the England with which the American colonists had been most familiar. And the second phrase means just what it says, that Congress shall pass no law prohibiting people from worshipping God as seems to them good.

For years those simple things have been taken for granted. We have said "Of course, those were progressive steps when they were taken, 150 years ago, but they are elemental now."

So they were, until recently. Now even these elemental principles have been challenged. It goes to see Protestants, Catholics and Jews rising together to defend them. Such co-operative action brings about mutual understanding which has even deeper than constitutional guarantees. And it is grounded on a solid foundation that loss of freedom for any is the end of freedom for all.

Alcoholic Neuritis May Be Caused By Vitamin Deficiency

When nerves become inflamed or damaged so that they degenerate, the condition is commonly called neuritis—which means an inflammation of the nerve. The public has learned to use the term for any undiagnosed pain which frequently is not neuritis but arthritis, meaning inflammation of the joint, or a myositis, meaning inflammation of a muscle.

There are all sorts of causes for neuritis. It has been well established that poisons, particularly poisoning by lead, arsenic and mercury, may cause serious inflammations in the nerves. Excessive use of alcohol and many of the chemical poisons used in industry may produce neuritis. Occasionally chemical compounds such as those found in synthetic gin during prohibition, may produce neuritis.

Infections may attack nerves as well as other tissues and all of the common infections may occasionally produce neuritis. Disturbances of the blood which make it impossible for the nerves to receive proper nourishment may result in degenerative and inflammatory changes.

Finally, a deficiency in the diet of certain vitamins has a definite effect on nerve tissue. There are instances in which changes in the construction of nerve tissue are inherited.

It becomes impossible to treat all cases of neuritis in the same way. It is important to determine the exact causes in each instance and to treat the condition accordingly. It is possible in some instances that several causes are operating at the same time.

Alcoholic neuritis is now rare. Now it is seen most frequently among secret drinkers, particularly women. This condition is seen much more often than the alcoholic neuritis associated with sudden or prolonged drinking at rare intervals. Recently it has been well established that alcoholic neuritis is due to the fact that the patient does not eat and as a result becomes deficient in vitamin B1. The deficiency of vitamin B1 is more directly responsible for the neuritis than is the alcohol itself.

High School Graduates Turn Movie-Makers

ATLANTA, Ga.—(P)—Imagine a high school commencement with a talking movie substituted for speech-making. To add excitement, let the movie be the senior class's own "production." That was what the mid-term graduating class at Murphy Junior high school had for its commencement. More than 50 members of the class acting, costumes, stage properties, spent three months in providing the music and camera work for their movie, "Lady of The Lake."

A Book a Day

From Magellan Until Today

Seldom has there been greater world interest in the affairs of Latin America than there is today. But the general impression of the countries to the south is hazy, jumbled. There is no genuine understanding even of Hispanic history, although it has been so closely tied up with North America's through three centuries.

To sit down with F. A. Kirkpatrick's "Latin America" (Macmillan: $3.75) is to clear up a great deal of this deficiency. Mr. Kirkpatrick, long one of the ablest students of Latin-American life, surveys the whole dramatic story from 1492 to 1939 in one compact volume.

Mr. Kirkpatrick divides his book into two major parts; one covering the whole of Latin-American history and a second treating the life and history of each republic separately. He concludes with an examination of the Latin-American picture in the light of present-day affairs.

Thus it is a significant book that awaits you, beginning with the explorations of Magellan, the conquests of Cortez, Pizarro, moving next into the heyday of the vast Spanish empire and tracing the sweeping struggle for Latin-American independence from 1805-1825. Its heroes, Bolivar, San Martin, Sucre, ride like romantic knights but behind it all is a story of intense hate and of oppression. When you have read it all you begin to realize why the countries to the south have still to attain their greatest growth.—P. G. F.

Ukrainians' Fight

The City P. T. A. Council and Study club will meet at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the city hall. A very interesting and helpful study will be led by Miss Beryl Henry, and a full attendance is urged.

Mrs. Tully Henry of Cushing, Okla., arrived Sunday night for a visit with Mrs. J. A. Henry and a visit with home folks in Saratoga.

Mr. and Mrs. Jennie McKee of Garland were week-end guests of Mrs. McKee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Moore.

The Builders class of the Gospel Tabernacle will have their business, social, and pot luck dinner in the home of Mrs. Lewis Brumfield, North Washington street Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

ing of co-operative stores and confiscation of Ukrainian newspapers, but arrests of Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church priests.

Aside from these charges of violence, the Ukrainians say the Polish government is pursuing a set policy of trying to Polonize the people. They charge that the government refuses them the right to acquire land, forbids the instruction of children in the Ukrainian tongue, eliminates them from the local government.

In Russia, the Ukraine nominally is one of the number of Soviet "Republics" which make up the Union of Soviet Russian Republics.

But here again Ukrainians leaders aboard say their compatriots are under a terror. They say that in 1930 the Soviet forced Ukrainians peasants to leave their farms and join the collective farming outfits. Thousands of those unwilling to do so were sent to convict camps in Siberia. The Ukrainians are a religious people. Their churches were closed and many of their priests sent to exile.

In the same year a giant trial was stage in Kharkov in which 45 Ukrainian leaders, many of them belonging to the intelligentsia, were charged with conspiracy to stir up a revolt for the purpose of establishing an independent Ukrainian republic. They were all found guilty and sentenced to long terms of imprisonment. Only recently it was reported that the OGPU had arrested a large number of Ukrainian officers in the Russian army on similar charges.

The Soviet masters are particularly nervous right now about happenings in the Ukraine because they fear Hitler's reputed plans for this spring or summer.

They would probably fight to the death to prevent the Ukraine being taken away from them.

The territory comprises one-quarter of the population of Russia, possesses 20 per cent of its industries, has nearly one-fifth of its industries, over 75 per cent of coal, 89 per cent of its coke, 77 per cent of its iron ore and 80 per cent of its sugar.

Therefore the loss of Russian Ukraine would be a body blow to the Soviet and a real empire for Nazi Germany.

Otis Hendrix, 44, former Hempstead county man who was killed the night of January 30, at a Pampa, Texas, night club, was buried in Pampa last Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Ola Lloyd of Hope, sister of the dead man, attended the funeral. Hendrix was a deputy sheriff at Pampa. The operator of the club was also killed.

The Library

The following is a synopsis of an interesting book that may be found on the rental shelves of the City Library: "With Malice Toward Some," is the diary of Margaret Halsey, the author. Margaret Halsey is the wife of a young Ph. D. who went to England on an exchange professorship. While her husband taught, the author saw life as it was lived in a small English village. Much that she saw seemed to call for applause and being an equal amount for Malice, a quality in which she is uproariously proficient. The fa-

Boy Scout Week to Begin Wednesday

Program Planned at Hope City Hall—Other Activities Listed

At a meeting of the Hope Boy Scout Council at the chamber of commerce office, Joe E. Clements, scout executive for this area, assisted local leaders in planning many activities to celebrate National Boy Scout Week, which begins Wednesday, February 8.

Among the many events planned is a joint meeting of all Boy Scouts in Hope at the city hall, Wednesday night, to hear messages from President Roosevelt, honoring president of the Boy Scouts and Acting President Walter Head of St. Louis. This program will begin at 9 p. m. central standard time. Whitten-York Furniture company has offered to furnish a radio for the occasion.

On Sunday night, beginning at 7:30 at the Presbyterian church, a special service will be held where all local scouts, their parents and friends will hear an address by Rev. V. A. Hammonds.

Each of the three troops will have a window display during the week, featuring some activity of this organization. There will be two types of window displays. One will show flags, emblems and articles made by scouts, the other type will be a live window, showing scout activities in progress. Both should prove most interesting.

Scout week will be observed all over the United States and programs honoring this organization will be broadcast by all radio stations and networks. H. V. Kallenborn, Bob Trout, Lowell Thomas and many other nationally known news commentators will talk on scouting.

Practically every national advertiser will dedicate a program to this worldwide organization, Edgar Bergen, Larry Ross, Fred Waring and dozens of other top radio stars who were formerly Boy Scouts will do honor to a million and a half boys belonging to the Boy Scouts of America.

Zadok's Questions and Answers

This Is Another Installment of Questions Answered by the Great Zadok for the Hope Star

Below is another of the series of questions asked The Great Zadok, Master Mentalist, who is appearing at the Saenger theater, one week. Any reader of the Banner-News may have his question answered by filling out the coupon and mailing it to The Great Zadok, in care of Hope Star, Hope, Ark.

Owing to the great demand for answers, you are requested to write but one question. This is free service to you, Star readers. Many questions will be printed each day as space will permit. No name will be published, but you will recognize your question and answer by your initials.

No question will be answered unless accompanied by coupon.

Q. Should I change jobs or stay with the man I am now with?—R. H. S.

A. Stay with the man who now employs you for the present. At a later date something else will show for you that will mean more money and a better position.

G. Is my mother all right living with my sister-in-law?—L. V. P.

A. So far as your mother being actually in need of anything, she is all right where she is. Your sister-in-law thinks very much of your mother and is doing her best to make her happy. However, in your mother's estimation, no one can take your place. You are her only daughter. And the only one left who can make her really happy. Even though she has never said so, she needs you. She needs your presence to give her the happiness she deserves. She has never asked you to be with her because she feels that it will interfere with your own happiness and affairs, but she would be most happy to have you near. There is a chance for you to be with her. Why don't you take it?

Q. Will my future be any more prosperous than my past?—G. C. S.

A. That depends largely upon yourself and your outlook upon life. True, you have had many adverse conditions arise and many things come up to set you back. But you have allowed yourself to follow a negative trend of thought, thus bringing still more negative conditions into your life. You are entering right now a more favorable cycle of life. Make it completely successful by thinking constructively at all times. Constructive thought builds prosperity and success. Destructive or negative thought tears down. This is an opportune time as you are entering the new cycle, to think constructively, act constructively with faith and confidence in the future. Yes, there is decidedly greater prosperity in the future for you than you have ever known in the past.

Q. Will be ever realize any money out of our property in Southwest part of Arkansas?—L. E. T.

A. You will not realize anything from your property in S. W. Arkansas until the year 1940 or 1941. However, I believe it to be good property and well worthwhile. So do not consider any sale at the present time.

Q. Do I have any cause to worry over what I am worrying about?—L. E. C.

A. I observe very much disturbed conditions surrounding you. Yet,

Q. How long will I be employed where I am now working?—D. E. L.

A. The time does not seem to be long. You may make changes soon. It will be changes from the present condition that surrounds you into

Mrs. S. Green, 91, Is Injured in Fall

Ozan's Oldest Woman Breaks Hip in Fall on Walk Sunday

Mrs. Sallie Green, 91, the oldest citizen in the Ozan community, fell and broke her left hip about 7 a. m. Sunday as she attempted to walk unassisted from her bed to her rocker by the fireside.

Her son, O. R. Green, the only one at the house at the time of the accident, rushed to her and assisted Mrs. Green in returning to her bed. Dr. W. F. Robins, the local physician was summoned immediately.

The condition of the hip prevented the re-setting of the broken part. Straightening the injured limb, the physician placed warm sand bags on either side of the limb to keep it as straight as possible.

Textbooks Probed

Arkansas patrons are forced to pay 12 cents more in buying this book at retail than is paid by Alabama residents.

State Education Commissioner T. H. Alford, secretary of the commission, said there "must be some mistake" in Senator Pilkinton's information, "because we have a state law prohibiting any book company to charge the state more for any book than the same book sells for in another state."

Mr. Alford said violation of this statute is grounds for breaking a contract and ordering forfeiture of bonds posted by the book companies making bids. These bonds vary according to the amount of business a company receives, he explained.

He said the commission does not investigate before awarding contracts to learn if the company is selling books in other states at lower prices, depending on integrity of the book concerns and the threat of forfeiture of bonds.

"The method of adopting free textbooks in Arkansas has not been successful or satisfactory in the past, so what reason have we to believe it will be in the future?" Mr. Pilkinton said, indicating he probably will fight an administration bill to provide free textbooks for high schools.

He said he had not decided how he would vote on the bill.

"So-called 'free textbooks' have not relieved parents of buying elementary books, since many of the books now in use are inadequate and because of this, additional materials are necessary for a satisfactory course. These usually are paid for by the school patrons," Mr. Pilkinton said.

He said records of the state Textbook Commission showed a speller series was contracted for at 15 cents each, although one company submitted a bid of eight and one-half cents each and another company submitted a bid of nine cents.

The Hope senator said teachers had informed him a history series now used "is out of date and inadequate and has been for many years." He also was informed that arithmetics recently adopted "are rated by teachers as in-much better ones.

Q. Will my husband keep his present job or get another one?—M. V. A.

A. The present position that your husband holds will not last any great length of time. However, he will immediately enter into a better position as soon as the change is made.

Q. Does the girl I have been going with in school care anything about me?—D. H.

A. As far as congeniality, sociability and companionship is concerned, I will say, yes. However, any further development rests with future contacts.

Q. What does this year hold for my husband financially?—Mrs. A. K.

A. This year holds better conditions for your husband which will gradually increase and in the next three to five years he will accomplish more than he has in the past 15 years.

Q. Will I get the job that I have been trying to get?—M. H.

A. Do not give up. Keep on reminding the people in question that you want the position in question and I am sure that you will succeed.

Q. When will I see a boy friend I met in Louisiana last fall?—I. H.

A. You will possibly see this party within the next six months. It will mean nothing to you as far as your future is concerned. I would advise you to devote most of your time to interests that immediately surround you... in other words, patronize home production.

In Dallas last week 88 out of 100 users said "Yes" to the question, "Were you helped by CARDUI?" In Atlanta another 100 were asked, and 98 answered "Yes."

Thousands of users are eager to tell how CARDUI has made them want and enjoy food; how, by its help, they have gained strength and were thus relieved of the symptoms of "functional dysmenorrhea" due to malnutrition. Many also say that, when symptoms indicate the need, CARDUI in larger doses helps "at the time" to soothe the pain.

Conference Teams Urged to Send in Entries at Once

Entries for the Arkansas High School Conference basketball tournament to be held at Pine Bluff February 24-25 must be in the hands of Coach LeRoy Scott of Little Rock or Allen Duna-way of Pine Bluff by Friday, February 17, it was announced over the week-end.

The tournament was arranged so the members of the conference could play 12 conference games to be eligible for the championship. All games played in the event will count toward the season record. A trophy will be given to the winning team.

Feature games this week will bring together the North Little Rock Wildcats and the Little Rock Tigers at the North Side court Thursday night and the Wildcats and Pine Bluff at Pine Bluff Tuesday night.

Eight Doctors Say Grove's Arm O. K.

Red Sox Hurler En Route to Hot Springs for Training

ST. LOUIS (AP)—If eight doctors are right, that strange "dead" arm of Robert (Moses) (Lefty) Grove will be forgotten in this year's baseball season.

The veteran Boston Red Sox hurler considered his salary whip is again in shape and he is looking forward to a good 1939 season. His pitching arm, "dead" last July 14 and stayed "dead" for five weeks in the middle of the season.

Despite that, Grove led the league with an earned run average of 3.07 and wound up with 14 victories against four defeats. Not a bad record for a pitcher who has been in action almost 21 years.

Lefty, stopping off here on his way to Hot Springs, Ark., for a couple of weeks of preliminary training, said he had eight doctors studying his baffling arm condition, which he described as having "no power in it."

They never did find out what was wrong with it," he said. "At least, if they did, they never told me."

Grove quoted them as saying his arm apparently was in "fine shape."

The lucky left-hander said he didn't do any hard work this winter. He just "loafed and hunted" in South Carolina and Canada—and put on 16 pounds. He weighs 213 now. He has given up smoking.

Although venturing the belief his arm should be as good as new this season, Grove wasn't predicting how many victories it would bring him.

"Never have in 20 years, and I don't intend to start now," he explained.

He did predict, however, that Cleveland and Boston "will be right up there battling the Yankees" this year.

100 YEARS OF BASEBALL

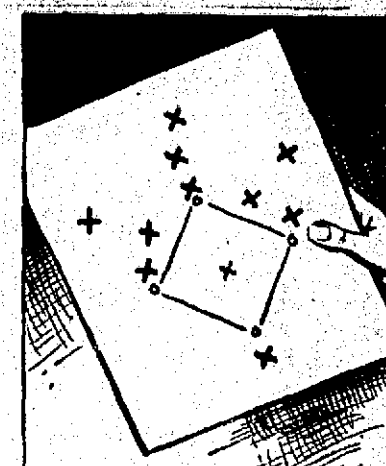

No. 1—Birth of the Game

In 1839, Abner Doubleday, young West Point cadet who later was to rise to rank of major-general, interested the boys of Cooperstown, N. Y., in a game he invented called baseball. He hoped it would displace the haphazard game of town ball, which in turn was a crude form of "one of cat."

History of the National Game Told in Sketches by Art Krenz

Rules of Doubleday's game provided for bases 90 feet apart, and 11 players, including extra shortstop and short fielder who roved.

The boys of the neighborhood took to the game eagerly and soon started choosing up sides for spirited competition, although equipment was crude.

Doubleday's rules still allowed an out be made merely by catching a batted ball on first bounce, as permitted in town ball, but eliminated the practice of "soaking," or putting out a base runner by hitting him with the ball. Under the new ruling the runner was retired by throwing to the base or tagging him. Next: First club.

ordinary means anything from an epidemic of the pip to a siege of injuries such as suffered by the White Sox a year ago. There appears to be no other worries.

His pitching problem? Not really acute, even though Spud Chandler will be out for some time with a broken ankle.

"Oral Hildebrand should be a big help to us," says Joe. "In the first place he'll be working in a bigger park than he had in St. Louis—and what's possibly more important, he'll have a better club behind him. If Gomez, Ruffing and Pearson do their usual job I'll be satisfied."

NEW YORK—It might sound like carrying coils to Newcastle, but Joe McCarthy, with just the correct amount of conservatism, remarks: "We could still be a little stronger for 1939—possible in the pitching department—but if nothing out of the ordinary happens, maybe we'll make it four straight."

The Yankee chieftain gives you to understand that something out of the though the Waffle Shoppe, a tenseness, a too gay spirit of comradeship, a subtle denial that this was farewell. By tomorrow the campus would be deserted, trains and cars and airplanes would have carried the beautiful young things away. By tomorrow Dick Tremaine would be gone.

ALWAYS Susie had been heart-sick at the end of the spring term, but never like this. Always she had been able to count the days until autumn, always she had known that Dick would come again in the autumn, that he would swing through the door and greet her with his friendliness, bringing back the ache and joy of seeing him.

It was different today. Dick had received his diploma that morning. Susie, sitting far back in the gallery, had seen him walk across the platform and grin as he accepted the sheepskin. Dick's grin—Susie actually shuddered away from the delicious hurt of Dick's grin. A flash of white, an indented line in each of his lean cheeks, a twinkle in his eyes—For a moment Susie leaned her forehead against the dish cupboard. Must it go on and on? Must she always be tortured by the longing to see Dick, to hear his voice?

Standing there she was suddenly caught by a ray of sunshine from an upper window, spot-lighted in all her drabness. Short and stout, heavy limbs ending in large, flat shoes, a definitely outcurving waistline, thick shoulders, pudgy wrists and hands. Her clumsily solid body was topped by a small, round head, made more round by short, bobbed hair and a limp fringe of bangs across her forehead. She had heavy, beaming brows which came together in a point over a ridiculously small nose. The nose was of the type called snub, tilting upward like two nostrils appearing like two surprised wide mouths and the frowning brows were constantly contradicted by the silly little nose, the apple round cheeks and chin.

To make matters worse Susie's complexion was definitely on the sallow side, her frequent flush was of a purplish hue. Susie's eyes were long, of all things, and rather nicely lashed.

WITH the passing of the afternoon fear added to the desolation in her heart. Perhaps Dick had gone without a last waste, without telling her goodbye. But that wasn't like Dick. Not once in four years had he missed his afternoon waffle. If he did not come on this, the last day, life would end for Susie.

Not that she expected anything in particular. Just to see him again, that was all. In the back of her mind was a little hope that he might say something, any small thing, that she could carry into the lonely, empty years. Some small thing that would mean nothing to him, but to her so much, so very much.

Stolidly, Susie went on with her baking. Chatter rose and fell around her like the wash of waves, gay little laughs broke across the waves like spray. It was five o'clock and Dick had not come. Susie ached with waiting. From habit she kept one eye on the door. That door had become her horizon, beyond it was nothing, through it drifted her pathetic moments of happiness. Only one more moment had she asked, only one—

The door swung open and Dick was there. Chin up, gay, young—strikingly handsome. A shiver of pain shot through Susie's numbness. She stood still, gobs of batter dripping from her ladle to the waffle iron. Lifting one leg over a stool Dick sat down. He smiled at Susie. White flash, friendly twinkle—

Susie closed the waffle iron and moved to the counter. Immediately one of the waitresses took her place. The girls knew what to expect, this had been going on for almost four years.

"Hello, Susie," Dick said cordially. He always said it like that, as if he were glad to see her. Never the patronizing, "Hi, Susie, make it snappy," of the other boys.

"Hello, Dick," Her voice was husky with emotion. He had come. Dick had come to say goodbye.

"How's my appetite today?" he asked, the twinkle far back in his eyes.

Susie kept her mouth grim. If she smiled her lips would quiver. Wanting to say something that Dick would remember she floundered stupidly, "I guess you want a waffle."

"Right the first time," he laughed. "Your waffles, Susie—they've got what gets me."

Fayetteville, Jonesboro Get Game Meets—Arkadelphia Track Meet

LITTLE ROCK — The annual state basketball tournament for the Class A and B divisions of the Arkansas Athletic Association will be held at Fayetteville, March 10-11, the Executive Committee decided at a meeting at the Hotel Marion Saturday.

It was believed that the University of Arkansas bid $1,150 for the two tournaments. The events will be held on the same dates. The Class A division will play its games in the new University fieldhouse and the Class B games will be played in the old gymnasium. Conway bid for the event.

The junior tournament was awarded to Jonesboro. No other bid was made. It will be held March 3-4. The annual track and literary meets will be held at Arkadelphia, May 5-6. Conway was the other bidder for that event.

Girls Ineligible
Four members of the West Point girls basketball team were declared ineligible. They are: Maxine and Imogene Showalter, Evelyn Shoffner and Margaret Ray. L. M. Goza of Arkadelphia, president, said that they transferred to West Point from the Griffithville school, which has a lower educational rating.

Mr. Goza said that the committee received evidence that the girls had not completed the work offered by the Griffithville school. Had they completed the work offered by the lower rated school they could have the privilege of attending West Point.

The team has won 37 straight games.

Yanks one of the youngest outfields ever to play in the major leagues—and, it might be added, one of the best.

Says Gehrig Still Has Plenty Left

McCarthy, among other things, denies Lou Gehrig is through. "Cold figures might indicate he had a poor season in 1938, but that was only a poor season for Gehrig. Everyone's just used to seeing him 'way up on top of the batting averages, and when he slips it seems startling."

"Oh, I know Lou isn't as fast as he used to be, but he still has at least three years of good baseball left in him."

Competition this year? Well, Joe has a watchful eye on Boston. "Foxy" came back strong last year and they've got a hard-hitting club all around. Good pitching, too.

Cleveland is wondering how Johnny Allen's operation will turn out. . . and if young Bob Feller will improve. Detroit will be tough if Bridges and Rowe make any kind of comeback and if this kid Hutchinson comes through."

But Marjoe Joe isn't going to worry too much about the opposition. That New York dynamite is too potent and no one realizes it better than Joe.

Stamps Cagers Win 2 Games From Lewisville

STAMPS, Ark.—Stamps High School cagers teams won two of three games with the Lewisville basketballers here over the week-end.

The Stamps senior girls won, 31 to 18. Strange, with 18 and Bridges with eight points high for Stamps and Clayton high scorer for Lewisville with 14 points. Lewisville senior boys won two, 16 to 15.

High scorers were Nichols of Stamps with six and Whitley of Lewisville with seven. The Stamps junior boys won, 24 to 15, with Williams of Stamps high scorer with 16 points and Mashaw high for Lewisville with seven.

A 112-acre community forest at Newington, N. H., established in 1910 is said to be the oldest in the United States.

This season and is believed to be one of the strongest teams in the state. Ox Walker is the coach.

Other members of the committee attending were: J. E. Howard of Stuttgart, first vice president; Jim Abraham of Lonoke, second vice president; and Ben Williams of Ashdown, secretary. R. H. Moore of Jonesboro, treasurer, was not present.

Porkers Win Both Games From Bears

Will Play Two Conference Tilts This Week With T. C. U.

DALLAS, Texas —(AP)—Arkansas Porkers stumbled over the comeback trail in a game attempt to retain the Southwest Conference cage flag they won last year.

Washed up three weeks ago after starting with three straight defeats, the tall Porkers, inexperienced and leaning on a sophomore basket ringer, started showing up the critics by whipping the tar out of Texas, 65-41.

Mid-term exams forced them into idleness for two weeks and no one will know what Coach Glen Rose told the kids during the interim, but the fact remains they came back in last week's only games to spill Baylor right out of second place with two convincing triumphs. Maybe it's too late to have actual designs on a pennant, but the Porkers are trying.

The Porkers make their last trip into Texas this week to meet Texas Christian in a two-game series at Fort Worth Friday and Saturday nights.

Southern Methodist, out in front with five victories and no defeats and kept off the playing floor the rest two weeks by exams on Monday night at Dallas will play Texas a pre-season choice. Saturday night the Methodist must meet Baylor at Waco.

The Texas Aggies, hard hit by the loss of Capt. Sammy Dwyer through scholastic difficulties, meet their old foe, Texas, at College Station Friday night with a makeshift line-up.

In the only other game of the week, Texas plays T. C. U. at Fort Worth Tuesday night.

John Adams of Arkansas snatched the scoring lead away from Frankie Carrawell of Rice, idle the past week, with a total of 75 points.

Yesterday's Henrich, Susie promises to say goodbye to Dick after four years. He drops in for a last waffle at her shop.

CHAPTER II

AS if he had complimented Susie, instead of her waffles, she flushed with pleasure. Dick would always remember her waffles, that was something. She brought his plate, adding another pat of butter, she drew his coffee as if it were a rite and filled a glass with ice water. Her hands trembled as she put the coffee beside his plate. The brown liquid sloshed over a little and she quickly got another saucer. Leaning against the counter she watched him spread the butter and empty the jug of syrup. He said nothing, eating.

In the back of Susie's mind ran a monotonous dirge. "This is the last time—this is the last time—this is—" She must talk. Dick would raise his eyes if she talked. "I—I saw you graduate this morning," she found voice to say. "How'd I do? All right?"

"Oh, yes—"

"S'pose you'll be getting a sheepskin one of these days."

"Not for two more years," forcing out the words past the dreadful lump in her throat. "It takes so long—night classes and summer short courses—" In a mad desire to narrow the distance between Dick and herself she had entered the music college. Her strangely sweet voice had never caused comment, it was too incongruous coming from Susie. She also studied French and literature, cultural things, blindly endeavoring to measure up.

"Two years will pass in no time," he said encouragingly.

Without you there will be no time, ran the dirge in Susie's heart. Aloud she asked, "Are you going away today?"

"Yep—how about another cup of coffee—all packed—bags in the car—"

She brought the coffee. "To Chicago?" her voice rough with the pain of holding on.

He nodded. "For a week or so to see the family. Then I'm off to California. I've got a job there." He was happy.

IT crossed her mind to wonder why Dick Tremaine should be so pleased over a job. Were not his people in the social register? Things like that made Dick so irresistible, his total lack of snobbery. But California—so far away.

"Building things?" she asked. Dick was now a full-fledged architect.

"Building a summer colony on the ocean not far from Laguna Beach. I sent some sketches to the firm and they hired me," he explained with a boyish swagger to his voice.

"That's lovely." "Yeah, isn't it?" He had finished his waffle and second cup of coffee but made no move to rise. Tossing 50 cents on the counter he waited for his change. That was another thing Susie liked about Dick. He never tipped her. A tip would have placed her definitely beneath him. He'd done so many kind, thoughtful things since that night—he'd left so many things charitably undone. Now, in just a moment, he would leave.

Susie reached under the counter, her fingers closed on a small, neatly wrapped package. She had nothing to lose, buying something for Dick had given her pleasure.

"I—I have a little gift for you," she said in a quivering voice.

"I—I have a little graduation gift for you, Dick," she said, absurd, even to herself, in her quivering eagerness. She pushed the package across the counter.

"Susie—that's wonderful of you—wonderful—" Slightly embarrassed, he untied the paper ribbon. The box contained a tie clip. It had cost Susie several dollars. Watching him open the box her palms were damp, her mouth dry. Dick said, "Thank you, Susie—I like it a lot."

Tears swam in her eyes. "I'm glad you like it," she said.

DICK thoughtfully dropped the case into his pocket. Suddenly he jerked up his head and looked straight into her blurring eyes. "You know I've always been sorry, Susie," he said.

"Yes."

He frowned. "Sorry—it's a small world—"

"You've shown me in a hundred ways—and I never blamed you. It was the nearest I ever came to a romantic conversation, to a display of emotion, and she trembled from the top of her bobbed head to the soles of her sensible shoes. She twisted her homely hands nervously.

But then Susie's little moment ended with the opening of the door. A girl came in. She was petite and smart, golden curls framed her lovely face. With a swift, graceful rush she crossed the room and slid to a stool beside Dick. Susie blindly went back to the waffle irons. She was not jealous, long since had futility and hopelessness taken the place of lesser emotions.

"Hi, handsome," she heard the girl say familiarly. "I thought we were starting for Chicago an hour ago."

"Couldn't go without one of Susie's waffles," he returned lightly. "I knew you'd wait."

"Ha—the concealed male." The girl laughed with a side glance that Susie would have given her soul to imitate. "One of these days I won't wait and then now'll you feel?"

"Desolated," he said easily. "Want a cup of java before we go?"

"No, thanks—just came from a

Franco Settles Old Scores in Victory

Head of Insurgents Was Always Known as a "Fighting Man"

By the AP Feature Service

The scene is Las Palmas, capital of the Canary Islands.

A short man with black hair, black eyes, dressed in the uniform of a Spanish army officer, came into a waiting plane. A moment later a British commercial pilot swings into his seat, turns on the ignition. A swirl of the propeller — and the plane catapults into the air, headed for Morocco.

It is July 17, 1936. The Spanish rebellion is on.

The man in uniform is Francisco Franco Bahamonde, military commander of the Canary Islands, a mean, remote post for one who once commanded Spain's foreign legion, who headed the nation's war college.

One of his most prized decorations came from Alfonso, the last king of Spain. "Serve me always," said Alfonso on that occasion to Franco, suppressor of the Rif in Morocco. But Alfonso was no longer king, and the Spanish throne was non-existent when Franco started an armed insurrection against the Republican government he hated and which distrusted him.

Now two and a half years after the Spanish civil war began, the world is still asking: "What is this rebel leader really like?"

Long Military Career

Generalissimo Francisco Franco is 46 years old. He comes of a middle class family in Ferrol, Galicia. The military career beckoned early; at 14 he was a cadet in the Alcazar, Toledo, Spain's West Point.

He is short, stocky, like Mussolini, at times he wears a little mustache like Hitler. Unlike the two Middle European dictators, he is not a speaker-maker and he has been a soldier all his life.

At 23 he was in Morocco, fighting the Rif. His courage and coolness won admiration from friends and foes, and so he was able to rally the Moors under the Insurgent flag, for they could respect a man who had fought them so bravely.

At 34 he was the youngest brigadier general in the army, already known in European military circles as an able strategist.

At 42 he won two nicknames, "the man of the hour" and "the butcher." It came about in this way.

In 1934 four years after the abdication of Alfonso, rightist elements in Spain won control of the government from the left. Immediately strikes and riots swept the country. In Asturias and Catalonia it was open rebellion and the left Republican party executive committee announced: "The handing over of the republic to its enemies is a monstrous deed."

Then Franco entered the scene from the Balearic Islands, whether he had been sent as military governor in a move by the Republic to get him out of Spain. The rightist regime headed by Alejandro Lerroux recalled him to suppress the workers' revolt and he did it with a mailed fist, bringing in his foreign legionnaires to mop up.

"Man of the Hour"

When Franco got through in Asturias and Catalonia he was "the man of the hour" to rightist Spain; but to the workers he had crushed he was "El Carnicero," the butcher. The name explains the stubborn resistance of these two provinces to his second invasion during the present war.

Franco is married, has a daughter aged 11. His face is dark and oval, with aquiline nose. A smile perpetually flickers over his face. His ability to relax is shown by an oft-quoted story—soon after issuing a decree creating his insurgent state party, he went into the garden of his headquarters to bounce a rubber ball with his daughter.

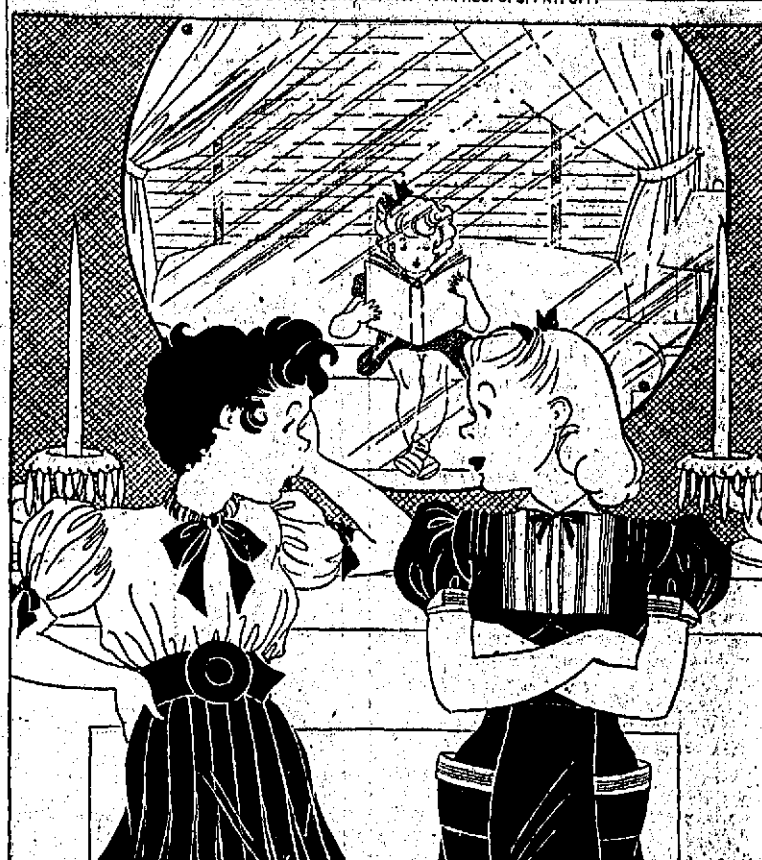

His administrative ability may best be judged by the peace he established among his followers—so divergent politically as any groups could be in Spain. There were the Carlists, followers of the late Don Carlos, Bourbon pretender to the Spanish and French thrones, the followers of ex-king Alfonso; phalanxist (fascists), Catholics, and professional army men who would like to rule Spain under a military dictatorship.

Franco prefers the title of "El Caudillo," the chief. What position or title he will assume if the insurgent cause is victorious over all of Spain remains to be seen.

In 1934, after the suppression of the Asturias and Catalonia, he declared: "The army has done its duty to constituted authority. The judicial and political authorities will now assume command. When he was mentioned for the ministry of war then, he is said to have replied: "My place is with the army."

Jack Benny Has Lots of Luck and It's Bad Most of the Time—Under Indictment or Pants Afire It's Very Funny

HOLLYWOOD—Jack Benny usually is a full-guy-on or off the screen, on or off the air, in out of court. He accepted his indictment on charges of Lying smuggled jewelry with about the same spirit that he displays when somebody gives him the hook, and with the same remark: "That's very funny."

Unhappy things are always happening to Mr. Benny, who is Hollywood's champion worrier and dearest comedian when he isn't performing. He is dead-pan because he actually does not see or hear what is going on about him. He just stalks around, rolling his eyes in his mouth and worrying about some imminent crisis which may be, nothing more than a 30-second scene in "Man About Town."

Not even an appearance in Federal court can be more terrifying to Mr. Benny than those first few moments when he faces a camera or a microphone.

In spite of the actor's preoccupation as a soldier not a politician.

The leftist government that own in the elections of January, 1936, removed him from his post as head of the nation's war college and "exiled" him to the Canary Islands as military commander. It was from there that he flew to Morocco to launch his insurgent thrust against the republic he had humiliated him.

Whether pinch-penny or prodigal, he is no waster of gags. A joke is the most precious thing in the world to a man in Benny's business, and he almost never says anything funny in informal conversation. His company in the smuggling trouble, George Burns, lets quips fall where they may. But Benny mumbles through a may, spatter like a small boy in juvenile court.

When Benny is not working in a picture, and has time to go to private parties or his golf club, he is almost as gay as anybody. During picture production, though, he works all the time. Two gag writers, Eddie Beloin and Bill Morrow, and Secretary Harry Belwin are always with him at the studio. During every spare minute they work on the radio program for the following Sunday.

Benny never appears in the Paramount cafe; he has gags and coffee in his dressing room. The three employees all talk at once. Benny sits back and listens. Occasionally he seizes a suggestion and raises and seizes as he elaborates on it. He never particularly says that a lousy idea is lousy; he says, "Maybe we could switch it around like this." His writers believe that he is the most kindly fellow who ever lived.

He's Good, That all

Beloin and Morrow are on his personal payroll, and he often uses them on movie "log." "This doesn't play right," he says, tossing away a few pages of script. He and his writers will work out some new lines. The result always is an improvement, or he would not be allowed such liberties.

His perpetual cigar is not a posed trademark; he smokes about 15 centers a day. Never smoked in his life until 10 years ago when he took a part in Earl Carroll's "Vantiles," which required him to puff stogies. His devotion to Miss Livingstone (who was Sadye Marks) and his 5-year-old adopted daughter, Joan, is one of Hollywood's special prizes. He and his wife call each other "Doll."

Benny never has attended a preview of two of his pictures. He goes to boxing matches, if there are any, and is on tenterhooks until Miss Livingstone finds him and says that the picture was a success.

And They Still Speak

Besides golf, Benny likes bridge, but is poor at poker. He owns a race horse, Buck Benny bought at a Saratoga action. Before Buck Benny's first race under his new colors, the actor gave Hillard Marks, his brother-in-law, $300 to bet on the nag across the board. Marks didn't find a bet to be anywhere, so he did the money. Buck Benny won, paid a big price, and cost its owner some $7000 by the unplanned wager.

Marks remains one of Benny's closest cohorts. Another is Harry Lee, his former Broadway manager who now is his stand-in although he has to wear 4-inch cork stilts.

NEXT: George Burns.

Song For New Zealand

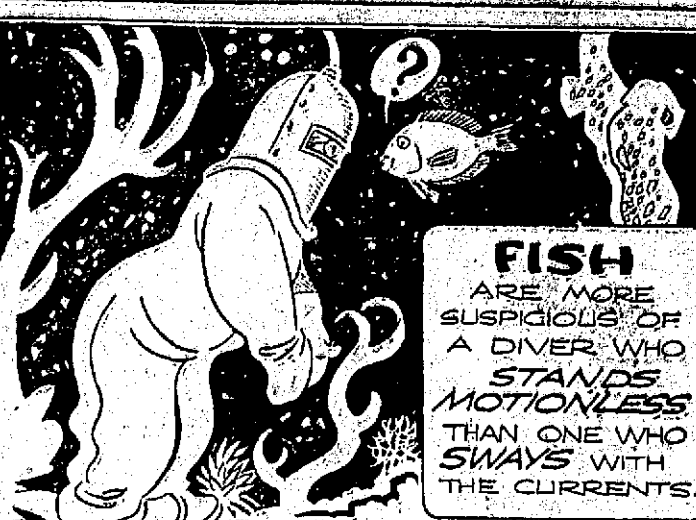

WELLINGTON, New Zealand.—(AP)—"God Defend New Zealand" may become the national song of the Dominion, if the recommendation of the National Centennial Council is adopted by the government.

The song is by Thomas Bracken, a New Zealand poet.

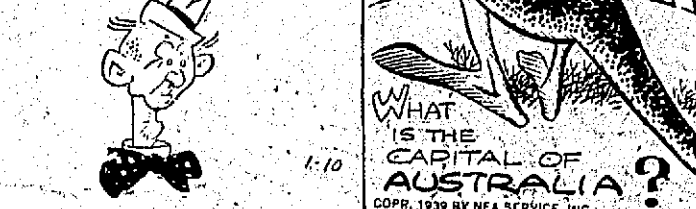

The Forest Service estimates that the 630,000 acres of United States timber land is probably sufficient to meet the country's needs if properly cared for.

Youth Naturally Resents Iron-Handed Parental Rule.

"I think I shall go crazy," said Mrs. Brown to Mr. Brown after a particularly trying evening. "Mary and John are forever quarreling. They not only fight each other but they turn on me. I wonder if you notice it, Abner. It is almost more than I can bear."

"Yes, I have noticed it," replied Mr. Brown. "But I think you could let things slide more than you do, Peggy. Take tonight, for instance, when John wanted to go to a movie instead of studying his French. Why not let him go to his show, and then think?"

"I might teach him a lesson. Besides, he said he had a study hour tomorrow that he could switch to French, as he is ahead in history."

"I still think I have the right to advise him, even if he is sixteen. I used to make him study his lessons, and I refuse to give up my privilege."

"All right, my dear. I was merely mentioning that if you want all this fussing to stop, maybe it would be better to suggest, instead of laying down the law."

"Very well, but how about Mary?"

She went out without her gloves. It is a fight every time to make her put them on.

"No doubt. But you have the same trouble with me, don't you? I won't wear rubbers."

"And you took cold, naturally."

"Yes, sitting in a draft at a meeting. I wear overshoes when I think it is necessary. I seem to know, without telling, when I need them."

"But it is night and cold, too. Mary should know better."

"She is in a car and I heard her say she hadn't ten feet of pavement to cross. I think she might have pleased you, Peggy, but these youngsters think they know."

"And the truth is they do, a big part of the time. The chances are they would do the right thing themselves, if we didn't remind them they are at an age when independence is part of their growing. They like to get credit for being able to manage without being told."

"Well, who will be cross if John fails?"

CLUB NOTES

Allen

The Allen Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Webb Lister on February 3, 1939. Miss Bullington, six old members, three new members and two visitors were present.

Vice-President, Miss Isabel Schooley presided over the meeting. Miss Schooley gave an interesting devotional "centering around the word 'home.'" Miss Bullington gave the first of the song "America," after which we sang the word. Each member answered the roll call by telling what home means to her. The minutes were then read.

Mrs. Ruffin White began the program by saying "Home is what you make it," and reading an article about home. She explained in detail how to refinish old furniture and floors. Helpful hints were then given by experienced members. Miss Bullington explained the landscape program.

An article on the soil of our Southland was given by Mrs. Webb Lister. The Valentine motif was carried out in the salad plate which was served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Lee Garland on March 3.

"I don't like it, but the boy has never let us down yet. He has some sort of hit-and-miss way that gets him there."

"They are still my children and must do my bidding," insisted Mrs. Brown. "I shall continue to tell them what to do, when to do it and how."

"Then you must look for argument. That is the natural growth of youth trying itself out. Parents have a little fling."

Take Calotabs to Help Nature Throw off Colds

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets three times a day and repeat the third or fourth tablet if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all medicinal stimulants, thus clearing the intestinal tract of any virus-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which may be needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family pack—ten cents for the trial package (A.C.P.).

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

YOUR CAMERA LENS

A camera with an anastigmat lens, f.6.3 or faster, is a great help in obtaining clear, sharp indoor pictures such as this.

TAKING first-rate snapshots requires good eyes. One is your "eye for pictures," your ability to recognize a picture when you see it. The other is your camera's "eye"—its lens.

You can train your "eye for pictures." The more snapshots you take, the better you learn to see a picture chance when it confronts you. But, once you have chosen a subject, it is up to your camera's "eye" to record it clearly and sharply.

Lenses on most box type or fixed-focus cameras are remarkably good, at the price. But the finest camera lenses are known as "anastigmats." They are fast—let in a greater amount of light than the ordinary lens—enabling you to take pictures under adverse conditions, on dull days and at night. And they produce negatives with needle-sharp detail over the entire picture area. Negatives made with anastigmat lenses yield splendid enlargements.

The word "anastigmat" is usually stamped on the mounting of these lenses. It is something like the "Storling" mark on silver. Actually it means "free from astigmatism." The speed of the lens is also indicated, in the form of an "f-number," such as f.6.3, f.4.5 or f.2.

This speed is important. An f.6.3 anastigmat lens is four or five times as fast as the average box-camera lens. This extra speed makes snapshots possible in dull weather, and with small photo bulbs at night. Again, an f.4.5 anastigmat lens is twice as fast as the f.6.3. And on the better-grade miniature cameras, one finds fast lenses rated at f.3.5 or f.2—so fast that they take snapshots at night by ordinary room light, when the camera is loaded with high speed film.

The smaller the "f-number," the faster the lens. Always remember this, when you examine a camera. And when you get a finer camera, with fast lens, treat the lens as carefully as you would a jewel. Don't smear it with fingerprints; clean it occasionally with a soft lintless cloth. If you treat your camera's lens well, it will repay you with many better pictures.

Priming the Pump Fails Aid Industry

Survey Shows Spending Program Failed to Sustain Buying

BY PRESTON GROVER
WASHINGTON—Back of the flurry about helping business is one solid problem—how to transfer from the shoulders of the government to the shoulders of business the task of supporting the national economy.

"Priming the pump" is successful when it generates private buying of a truly sustaining nature. In 1936-37 it brought up the spending level, but brought no trade analysts since have discovered.

The buying increase was mainly in the field of consumer goods (groceries, clothes).

2. Purchase of capital goods (those intended for plant expansions) were one-fourth below the level which sustained the prosperity of the happy twenties.

3. Much of the buying of capital goods actually reported in 1936 and 1937 was merely for replacements long deferred and did not represent new capital invested in the hope of profit.

4. Study "Indigestion" Causes From Summer: H. Slichter, of the Harvard business school, and other economists, have been digging into treasury figures, bank reports, industrial statistics and other places where symptoms of business indigestion show.

They found that it wasn't government, nor labor, nor unsteady dollars, nor war scares, nor consumer revolt that caused the 1937-38 slump. Instead it was a combination of all.

While many big corporations reported profits, the 400,000 smaller corporations, important to industrial America, were making thin profits or none at all.

5. The transfer from government spending to private spending fell short of success. Last year it started all over again.

Has Ideas For Improvement
Slichter, although often critical of the policies of the present administration, says the task of transferring the property to a private basis is primarily one for private business managers. They must test new methods, he says, lowering prices, offers limited relief because the price level of finished goods already is below the 1929 level.

Boosting prices won't work, he adds, pointing out that while labor income increased during 1936-37, purchases of consumer goods did not increase correspondingly.

Slichter advises that wage scales be revised to allow the business manager to lower costs and thus go after new business. Hosiery workers have cooperated notably, he said. He cites rail wage scales as obsolete, asserting that they discourage railroad managers from running faster, lighter trains.

Railroads further are troubled, he said, by small blocs of security holders who hinder needed capital reorganizations. (There are moves afoot in congress aimed at remedying that.)

His analysis also puts the bee on government to help encourage business. He advocates completion of utility industry reform, fairer rules of competition between public and private utility enterprises, and tax reforms.

Most important he places reduction in costs of housing. Manufacturers of automobiles, radios and furniture have lowered prices sharply in 10 years, while vastly improving the product. But housing costs, he says, have increased sharply.

He estimated an annual expenditure of $14,000,000,000 on capital goods and housing might reasonably be developed in two, three or four years—with consequent full time new employment for 8,000,000 men at good wages.

Dempsey Morrison, North Carolina's 1938 champion 4-H Dairy Calf Club member, calculated a profit of $1,638 in one year from a herd of five Jerseys.

Today's Fashion Hint

Boles Design Will Bloom Into Fashion Next Spring

By CAROL DAY
There's the type of bolero frock that will bloom in the spring, smarter than ever, and continue in fashion all through the summer.

The bolero is sleeveless, and cut short enough to make your waist look smaller. Crisply tailored in line, the frock part of Pattern 8209 is simplicity itself—darted into a slim waistline, with a slimhopped skirt that flares just a bit at the hem. The bodice is trimmed with two saucy flaps. It's a dress you'll thoroughly enjoy for business, shopping an dall sorts of run-about.

Make this of thin wool, flat crepe, satin or combinations of print and plain color. Trim the neckline and front with contrasting braid or piping. Why not have a silk and a wool dress both?

Pattern 8209 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material; 4 1/2 yards of braid or piping. To line bolero use 1 1/2 yards.

The new SPRING and SUMMER PATTERN BOOK, 32 pages of attractive designs for every size and every occasion, is now ready. Photographs show dresses made from these patterns being worn; a feature you will enjoy. Let the charming designs in this new book help you in your sewing. One pattern and the new Spring and Summer Pattern Book—25 cents. Pattern or book alone—15 cents.

Money for Trees

In 1937 Hempstead county locked $12,000 earning all of the soil-building payments under the farm program and in 1938, probably twice as much was unearned. Each acre of forest trees set will earn four units or $6 under the 1938 farm program. Each acre of trees set out in 1938 and reseed, cultivated, and protected from fire will earn two units or $3 per acre.

Farmers interested should contact the extension agent at once as orders for trees from the state nursery to be set this year should be placed within the next two weeks.

One thousand seedlings, sufficient to plant one acre, will be given to some 4-H club boy who has desirable land and facilities for caring for the trees.

Trees properly planted on abandoned or diverted cropland for posts, pulpwood, and lumber add a definite value to the farm, reduce erosion, and provide a future source of farm income. The best time for setting trees in Arkansas is as soon as weather conditions permit after January 15, and rarely after March 15, according to F. J. Shulley, Extension forester, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

Black locust, and shortleaf and loblolly pine one-year-old seedlings can be purchased from the Arkansas Forestry Commission for $2.50 per thousand, through the co-operation of the county agent, district forester, or ranger. Spacing the seedlings 6 by 6 feet, 1,000 will plant about an acre, Mr. Shulley said.

The following procedure is recommended for planting:

(1) Work in crews of two—one digging the hole, the other carrying the seedlings in a bucket and planting them. Put water in bucket to keep roots moist.

(2) Dig a hole with mattock or grub hoe, making it large enough to accommodate the roots when they are spread out.

(3) Set seedlings in hole at same depth as they grew in nursery. Fill hole with fresh dirt, and pack firmly with heel.

(4) Protect seedlings from animals, weeds, brush, and fire. Black locust should be pruned at end of first and second year.

An early use of camouflage was made by the British in Louisiana in 1815 at the battle of Chalmette. In their retreat they left stuffed figures to resemble musketeers.

New Island Appears
BRISBANE, Australia.—(AP)—Erosion has given the world a new island. This is part of Stradbroke Island off the coast of Queensland, about half a mile of which has been severed by constant action of the sea.

TVA and Utilities Arrive at Terms

U. S. Forced to Recognize Value of Company's Common Stock

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Some leading executives over the week-end predicted a major improvement in business as a result of Saturday night's amicable settlement of the six-year fight between the utilities and the national administration over the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Economists, financial leaders and big business head for years have argued that no substantial improvement in heavy industry in the United States would come until the utilities resumed expansion programs.

More and more this belief has been accepted in financial circles, that such spending is indispensable to recovery and that recovery periods characterized by consumer business pickup without corresponding pickup of heavy industries would be short-lived. Recently, say these sources, more administration leaders privately have accepted this principle.

The TVA settlement with Wendell L. Wilkie, president of Commonwealth Southern Corp., to buy that system's Tennessee Electric Power Company's electric properties for about $90,000,000 was characterized by some utility executives here as "capitulation" on the part of the administration to the utilities' argument.

Local utility executives in other systems said the end of the six-year Wilkie-TVA feud was made possible by major concessions on the part of negotiators representing the federal administration. These include:

1. Recognition for the first time of "equity" or common stock value in utility systems.
2. Recognition of "going business" value in utility financial structures also for the first time.
3. Recognition of investments not
